

You've done it again—The Night Heron is powerful, compelling, engaging, humorous, and deeply human.

The Rogue's Mother Courage is quite possibly the best theater I have ever seen in Tucson.

Unless you visit London for the theater season every year, you are not likely to see a better performance of The Winter's Tale in your lifetime.

THE Rogue
THEATRE

The Season of Lust
2013–2014

Great literature.
 Challenging ideas.
 Intimate setting.

Recipient of the 2012
 American Theatre Wing
 National Theatre Company Award

Mistake of the Goddess

(Hayavadana)

by Girish Karnad

September 12–29, 2013

Production Sponsors: Nils & Ann Hasselmo

Through jealousy and devotion, two friends, in love with the same woman, behead themselves in a temple. They are restored by the goddess Kali, but with transposed heads. So which is the husband?

MEASURE FOR MEASURE

by William Shakespeare

November 7–24, 2013

Production Sponsors: Ward & Judith Wallingford

Isabella pleads for her brother's release from prison and unleashes the lust of the judge Angelo.

Arcadia

by Tom Stoppard

January 9–26, 2014

Production Sponsors: John & Joyce Ambruster

Elegant and funny, this Stoppard-clever work spans two eras, two hundred years apart, centering on affairs of the heart, mind, and cosmos.

BETRAYAL

by Harold Pinter

February 27–March 16, 2014

Production Sponsor: David Lewis

A unique reversal of the timeline heightens the poignancy of a love affair. Three deeply sympathetic characters meet in a collision of passion against marital fidelity.

Dante's Purgatorio

by Patrick Baliani

April 24–May 11, 2014

Production Sponsors: Joan & Doug Cook

A poetic reimagining of this seminal work of western literature of the journey through the seven levels of sin, guided by the poet Virgil.

Your production of Journey to the West merged music, acting, sound, lighting, costumes and props to swirl us effortlessly from underworld to celestial realms and back to earth again. We left the theatre feeling intoxicated, and this morning, we're still smiling.
